Q49 It is up to our government and planners to devise ways and means for the mobilisation of about ten crore workers : whose families total up about forty crore men, women and children. Our agriculture is over-manned. A lesser number of agriculturists would mean more purchasing or spending power to every agriculturist. This will result in the shortage of man-power for many commodities to be produced for which there will be a new demand from a prosperous agrarian class. This shortage will be removed by surplus man-power released from agriculture as suggested above.

The passage best supports the statement that:

- (a) Employment in production is more fruitful than employment in agriculture.
 (b) Indian economy is in a poor shape basically due to improper mobilisation of man-power.
 (c) A shift of labour from agricultural sector to the industrial sector would uplift the living standard.
 (d) The industrial sector is labour-deficient while the agricultural sector is over-manned in our country.

Passage:

Read the Passage given below and answer the following questions:

During the first year that Mr. Wordsworth and I were neighbours, our conversation turned frequently on the two cardinal points of poetry, the power of exciting the sympathy of the reader by a faithful adherence to the truth of nature and the power of giving the interest of novelty by the modifying colours of imagination. The sudden charm, which accidents of light and shade, which moonlight or sunset diffused, over a known and familiar landscape, appeared to represent the practicability of combining both. These are the poetry of nature. The thought suggested itself that a series of poems might be composed of two sorts. In the one, the incidents agents were to be, in part at least, supernatural; and the excellence aimed at was to consist in the interesting of the affections by the dramatic truth of such emotions, as would naturally accompany such situations, supposing them real. And real in the sense they have been to every human being who, from whatever source of delusion, has at any time believed himself under supernatural agency. For the second class, subjects were to be chosen from ordinary life; the characters and incidents were to be such as will be found in every village and its vicinity, where there is a meditative and feeling mind to seek after them or to notice them, when they present themselves.

In this idea originated the plan of "Lyrical Ballads" in which it was agreed, that my endeavours should be directed to persons and characters supernatural, or at least romantic; yet so as to transfer from our inward nature a human interest and a semblance of truth sufficient to procure for these shadows of imagination that willing suspension of disbelief for the moment, which constitutes poetic faith. Mr. Wordsworth, on the other hand, was to propose to himself as his object, to give the charm of novelty to things of everyday and to excite a feeling analogous to the supernatural, by awakening the mind's attention to the lethargy of custom and directing it to the loveliness and the wonders of the world before us; an inexhaustible treasure, but for which, in consequence of the film of familiarity and selfish solicitude, we have eyes, yet see not, ears that hear not, and hearts that neither feel nor understand.

Itemcode : JS1146

Q66 The dialogue between the author and Mr. Wordsworth usually centred around

- (a) the sympathy which the reader feels for the poet.
- (b) importance of adhering to the truth of nature.
- (c) contribution of imagination to poetic creation.
- (d) the most prominent characteristic of poetry.

Key: C

Passage:

Read the passage given below and answer the following questions:

What is the future which awaits our children? The underlying assumption of the question, that Indian children have a common future, is itself dubious. It can legitimately be asked whether a student who is well-fed, attending a boarding school in the salubrious climate of the hills and learning to use computers has any future in common with a malnourished child who goes to a school with no blackboards, if indeed he does go to school. The latter may have no worthwhile future at all. And it might be worthwhile to analyse the significance of this marginalization of more than 75 per cent of the children of this country.

The failure to provide an infrastructure for primary education in the villages of India more than 40 years after independence is in sharp contrast with the sophisticated institutions, for technical institutes of higher education are funded by the Government, which essentially means that the money to support them comes from taxes. And, since indirect taxation forms a substantial part of the taxes collected by the Government, the financial burden is borne by all the people. L. K. Jha put it graphically when he observed that 25 paise of every rupee spent on educating an IIT student comes from the pockets of men and women whose children may never enter a proper classroom.

Itemcode : JS1151

Q71 The author is trying to highlight which of the following?

- (a) Faulty system of direct taxes.
- (b) The greatness of L. K. Jha
- (c) Need of sophisticated education for rural poor.
- (d) Need to have common future for Indian children.

Key: D

Itemcode : JS1152

Q72 Which of the following pairs have been termed as 'sharp contrast' by the author?

- (a) Infrastructure for technical education.
- (b) Lack of infrastructure for rural primary schools.
- (c) 25 paise of every rupee earned by Government is spent on education.
- (d) The financial burden of higher technical education is borne by all people.

Key: A

Itemcode : JS1153

Q73 What seems to be the likely answer of the author to the question posed by him in the first sentence of the passage?

- (a) There is no common future for the Indian children.
- (b) The future is worthwhile for majority of Indian children.
- (c) The majority may never enter a proper classroom.
- (d) The future will be bright for all Indian children.

Key: A

Itemcode : JS1154

Q74 What seems to be the purpose of the author in writing this passage?

- (a) Setting goals for children of upper middle class.
- (b) Questioning the legitimacy of public schools.
- (c) Highlighting lack of infrastructural facilities for primary education.
- (d) Focusing on inequality in educational opportunities.

Key: D
