And on top of all this was Smattering Hall itself. Smattering Hall destroyed Mordred's last hope. It was one of those vast edifices, so common throughout the countryside of England, whose original founders seem to have budgeted for families of twenty-five or so and a domestic staff of not less than a hundred. 'Home isn't home', one can picture them as saying to themselves, 'unless you have plenty of elbow room'. And so, this huge, majestic pile had come into being. Romantic persons, confronted with it, thought of knights in armours riding forth to the Crusades. More earthy individuals felt it must cost a packet to keep up. Mordred's reaction of passing through the front door was a sort of sick sensation, a kind of settled despair.

Tradition means those ways of thinking and feeling which have come down to us from the past. We still have tremendous faith in the power of goodness. This again has nothing to do with religion. A national leader appealed to a group of dacoits of Madhya Pradesh, to give up their criminal lives and start afresh. One by one, they came and laid down their arms. They did not surrender to force but to goodness. This took place in the year 1972, but it could easily be a legend of ancient times. Many people say such a thing could not have happened anywhere else in the world today. Happiness of this kind tells us that ours is a living and growing tradition. It is still taking in new influences and merging them with the old. If this stops, Indian tradition itself will die.

Question Description

Each of the following questions contains a small paragraph followed by a question on it. Read each paragraph carefully and answer the question given below it.

It is up to our government and planners to devise ways and means for the mobilisation of about ten crore workers whose families total up about forty crore men, women and children. Our agriculture is over-manned. A lesser number of agriculturists would mean more purchasing or spending power to every agriculturist. This will result in the shortage of man-power for many commodities to be produced for which there will be a new demand from a prosperous agrarian class. This shortage will be removed by surplus man-power released from agriculture as suggested above.

The passage best supports the statement that:

A

employment in production is more fruitful than employment in agriculture.

B

Indian economy is in a poor shape basically due to improper mobilisation of man-power.

a shift of labour from agricultural sector to the industrial sector would uplift the living standard.
