Comprehension

Read the following passage and answer the questions below:

Americans, I am aware, believe that they will produce Literature and Art, as they produce coal and steel and oil, by the judicious application of intelligence and capital; but here they do themselves injustice. The qualities that are making them masters of the world, unfit them for slighter and less serious pursuits. The future is for them the kingdom of elevators, of telephones, of motor-cars, of flying machines. Let them not idly hark back, misled by the effete traditions, to the old European dream of the kingdom of heaven ...let them say, "for Europe, Letters and Art", let America rule the world by syndicates and trusts!" For such is her true destiny, and that she conceives it to be such, is evidenced by the determination with which she has suppressed all irrelevant activities. Every kind of disinterested intellectual operation she has severely repudiated.
