Comprehension

Read the following passage and answer the questions below:

Americans, I am aware, believe that they will produce Literature and Art, as they produce coal and steel and oil, by the judicious application of intelligence and capital; but here they do themselves injustice. The qualities that are making them masters of the world, unfit them for slighter and less serious pursuits. The future is for them the kingdom of elevators, of telephones, of motor-cars, of flying machines. Let them not idly hark back, misled by the effete traditions, to the old European dream of the kingdom of heaven ...let them say, "for Europe, Letters and Art", let America rule the world by syndicates and trusts!" For such is her true destiny, and that she conceives it to be such, is evidenced by the determination with which she has suppressed all irrelevant activities. Every kind of disinterested intellectual operation she has severely repudiated.

Comprehension

Read the following passage and answer the questions below:

Ordinarily, if a man goes out in the street and shoots down another man, he is apt to feel sorry for it, thinking that he has done wrong. But if the same man, as a soldier in his regiment, kills not one but plenty, he is certain to feel glad and think that he has done his duty remarkably well. Thus, it is not the thing that defines duty. To give an objective definition of duty is thus entirely impossible. Yet there is duty from the subjective side. Any action that makes us go God-ward is a good action, and is our duty; any action that makes us go downwards is evil and is not our duty

Question Description

“Thus, it is not the thing done that defines duty”.

From the options given below, identify the one that implies the complete sense of the above statement.

A

There is duty from the subjective side

B

It is an objective assumption

C

A Godly action is our duty

D

It is the context of the action that defines it
